For example: Strength • Kim is in Stage 2 of the psychosocial stages of development which helps her mother understand why Kim is saying 'no' and not eating vegetables to try and be autonomous (1). This enables her mother to have a clearer grasp of Kim's development so she is aware of expected behaviours during this stage and can allow Kim freedom to show autonomy (1). Weakness • Erikson (1959) could be considered a simplified description of behaviours expected from Kim in her stage of development such as trying to be independent and putting her shoes on (1) but it does not provide practical solutions for successful completion of each stage, which means it may not be helpful when trying to support Kim to achieve her basic virtue of autonomy (1). Accept any other appropriate response.	(4)

19	AO1 = 3 marks; AO2 = 3 marks; AO3 = 3 marks Markers must apply the descriptors in line with the general marking guidance (on pages 2–3). Due to the intrinsic links between the skills, if a response evidences performance against only one trait/skill it will be for demonstrating knowledge and understanding. An answer displaying qualities of AO1 only, cannot be awarded more than the top of Level 1, no matter how strong the performance is in AO1. AO1 • This stage takes place between approximately 19 and 40 years old and focusses on relationships conflicting with loneliness. • The conflict in this stage is about forming intimate and loving relationships with other people, including partners. • Resolving this stage results in the basic virtue of love, whereas remaining in conflict can lead to isolation and loneliness. AO2 • Jacob separated from his partner when he was 26 years old, which can explain why he is becoming isolated and alone. • Jacob is showing he is in conflict to as he wants a new partner but has isolated behaviour of going to a bar alone. • His strong relationship with his friend shows Jacob still has some intimacy and is not in conflict with all his relationships. AO3 • Isolation and feelings of loneliness may indicate Jacob has a mental health condition such as depression, rather than unresolved conflict, which can explain his behaviour. • The concept that unhappiness is when there is a gap between the relationship you have and what you desire can explain why Jacob feels alone but unsure about falling in love. • There is limited scientific evidence for the psychosocial development stages so it can be difficult to empirically test whether Jacob is behaving this way due to conflicts.	(9)

For example: • Maria is 16 years old, so she will be in the 'identity versus confusion' stage of her identity development where she may have difficulty making life decisions such as attending school/college (1), which according to Erikson (1959) is because Maria is developing how she sees herself and deciding who she wants to be as a way to establish her autonomy (1).
