23 Giovanni was at school at lunchtime when his friend asked him if he was going to the concert of their favourite band the following summer. Giovanni said he had no money to pay for a ticket, so his friend suggested he get a part-time job. Giovanni's friend said most of their friends had part-time jobs that fitted around school and were all saving their money to pay for a ticket to the concert.

Giovanni went to his local shop and was successful in getting a job as a newspaper delivery person. He had to deliver newspapers to the same houses each day and remember a specific route which started and ended at the shop.

When Giovanni was delivering newspapers one morning, he looked through the window of a house and saw an elderly person on the floor in distress. Giovanni tried to get into the house to help the person, but could not, so rang the emergency services who arrived soon after. The paramedics said the person was lucky that Giovanni had raised the alarm as they did not have any family so were unlikely to have been helped.

Assess Giovanni's behaviour using two areas of psychology that you have studied.

26 Carlie is playing badminton at school and is trying to get selected to play for the school team. Carlie is trying to win a point in a badminton match but misses the shuttlecock and trips over and her head hits the floor. She tries to play another point but misses with another swing.

Carlie loses the point and thinks she will never be good enough to win a badminton match and walks off the court. Her badminton coach asks her to try again the next time they play. Before the next game, Carlie practises a lot with her friends. When the next team selection game comes Carlie wins a match and is selected to play for the school team.

When Carlie plays for the school badminton team, she becomes very competitive and shouts at the opposition players during matches. When she goes home, she is quiet and reserved.

Assess Carlie's behaviour using two areas of psychology that you have studied.

28 Lorenzo has always liked music and can play a number of instruments. His favourite instrument is the guitar but he can play the piano, drums, clarinet, saxophone and trumpet.

Recently Lorenzo has joined a band. He is one of the guitar players but sometimes plays the piano or drums or sings if others cannot attend rehearsals. He has been making some mistakes with the songs during rehearsals by missing notes or some words from the songs.

For their forthcoming performance at a local pub the lead singer, called Daniel, tells the rest of the band to wear black T-shirts with skulls on them and so they all buy one. Lorenzo does not have enough money to buy a T-shirt, but makes his own so that he does not feel like the odd one out.

During the performance the band members begin to shout and scream and swear a lot when they do not normally act this way.

Assess the band's behaviour using two areas of psychology that you have studied.

23 Lukas really enjoys musicals, but his friends that he spends most of his time with do not enjoy musicals. There is a musical production being put on by Lukas's school in a few weeks' time, and Lukas has auditioned and got a part, but has not told his friends.

During break time at school, all of Lukas's friends laugh and make fun of other students who are involved in the musical. Lukas sometimes joins in and makes fun of them too, because he is embarrassed to tell his friends he is involved in the musical.

When Lukas is with the musical cast and crew, he really enjoys reading his lines with the other people involved in the musical. Lukas works very hard to learn his lines by repeating them a lot and practising them with the other cast members. Lukas also constantly practises his dance moves for the musical, in private away from his friends.

Assess Lukas's behaviour using two areas of psychology that you have studied.

27 The Chesworths are a family who love to play board games and card games together at the weekend and in the school holidays.

When at school, Gerard Chesworth is not competitive and always waits his turn and never shouts or screams. When the whole family are at home playing games they become very competitive, they all scream and shout a lot and Gerard joins in.

Recently, Gerard's father taught the family to play a new card game. Gerard found the game difficult to understand and kept forgetting the rules, which meant he lost most of the time. This made Gerard very upset, so he played the game repeatedly on his own in private.

The next time the family played the new card game, Gerard won quite a few times which made him happier. Gerard's brother started to come last all of the time. He stopped playing, stood up and told the family there is no point in playing any more as he would never improve.

Assess the Chesworth family's behaviour using two areas of psychology that you have studied.
